(1) A parent company constitutes, together with a subsidiary or subsidiaries, a company group.
(2) A public limited liability company is a parent company if it, owing to agreement or as owner of shares or partnership interests, has determinative influence over another company. A public limited liability company shall always be deemed to have determinative influence if the company:
1. owns so many shares or parts in another company that they represent a majority of the votes in such other company or;
2. has the right to elect or remove a majority of the members of the board of directors of such other company.
(3) A company which is related as mentioned in the preceding paragraph to a parent company is deemed to be a subsidiary.
(4) In calculating the voting rights and rights to elect or remove members of the board of directors, the rights of the parent company and that of its subsidiaries shall be included. The same applies to anyone acting in his own name but on account of the parent company or a subsidiary.
§ 1-4. Companies that are equivalent to group companies
(1) The following rules regarding parent companies apply also when the parent company is a private limited liability company: § 3-8, § 6-5, § 6-16 (1), § 6-16a (1) third sentence no. 3 § 6-35 (5), § 8-5, §§ 8-7 through 8-10 and § 9-8.
(2) The following rules regarding subsidiary companies apply also to a subsidiary with a foreign parent company: § 3-8, § 4-25, § 6-16 (1), § 6-16a (1) third sentence no. 3, § 8-7 (1) and (2), §§ 8-8 through 8-10, § 9-1 (1) and § 9-8. The rules in §§ 4-25 and 6-16 are not applicable to foreign subsidiaries.

§ 1-5. Related parties
(1) For the purpose of this Act, related parties shall be interpreted to include:
1. spouses or persons who cohabit in a quasi matrimonial relationship;
2. relatives in direct line of ascent or descent and siblings;
3. relatives in direct line of ascent or descent and siblings of persons as mentioned under this first paragraph no. 1;
4. the spouse of, or a person cohabiting in a quasi matrimonial relationship with, any person as mentioned under this first paragraph no. 2;
5. Company where a person or a party as mentioned in no. 1 through 4, has such determining influence as mentioned in § 1-3.
(2) For the purposes of this Act, personally related parties shall be interpreted to include:
1. spouses or persons who cohabit in a quasi matrimonial relationship;
2. minor children of the person concerned, and minor children of a person as mentioned under this second paragraph no. 1 above with whom such person cohabits;
3. a company in which the person concerned or anyone mentioned in no. 1 and 2, has such determining influence as mentioned in § 1-3.

Chapter 2. Formation of a public limited liability company
I. Documents of Formation. Share subscription

§ 2-1. Memorandum of Association
(1) In order to form a public limited liability company, the subscriber(s) of shares in the company (the founders) shall draw up a memorandum of association. The memorandum of association shall contain the company’s articles of association (§ 2-2) and the provisions that are mentioned in § 2-3.
(2) If shares may be paid for in non-cash assets, or if anybody is to be given special rights in connection with the formation, or the company is to pay the expenses of its formation, the memorandum of association shall so provide, cf. §§ 2-4 and 2-5.

§ 2-2. Minimum requirement to the articles of association
(1) The articles of association shall at least state:
1. that the company shall be a public limited liability company;
2. the name of the company;
3. the municipality in Norway in which the company will have its registered office;
4. the company’s business;
5. the amount of share capital, cf. § 3-1;
6. the par value of the shares (nominal value), cf. § 3-1;
7. the number of shares;
8. the number or the minimum and maximum number of directors, cf. § 6-1;
9. whether the company shall have two or more general managers or whether the board of directors or the corporate assembly may decide that the company shall have two or more general managers, and if so, whether these several general managers shall serve as a collective body;
10. the matters to be dealt with by the ordinary general meeting, cf. § 5-6.
(2) If the object of the company’s business is not that of generating profit for the shareholders, the articles of association shall provide for the employment of any profit and of the capital in the event of liquidation.

§ 2-3. Other minimum requirements to the memorandum of association
The memorandum of association shall also state:
1. each founder’s name or company name, address and personal number or organization number;
2. the number of shares to be subscribed by each founder;
3. the price payable for each share (share contribution);
4. the time of settlement for the share contribution, cf. § 2-11;
5. the names of the company’s directors, and the name of the company’s auditor.

§ 2-4. Provisions for special rights
(1) The memorandum of association shall contain every agreement or other provision to the effect
1. that shares may be subscribed with a right or obligation to pay for them in non-cash assets, that the payment may be set off against a claim, or that shares may be subscribed on other special terms. In such case the memorandum of association shall describe the assets to be contributed, each subscriber’s name and address, the number of shares the company is to issue for the contributed assets, and the applicable conditions;
2. that the company shall take over non-cash assets in return for other assets than shares. If so, the memorandum of association shall describe the assets involved, the assigner’s name and address, the compensation to be made by the company, and the applicable conditions;
3. that the company shall be party to an agreement, or that anybody shall have special rights in respect of or benefits from the company. If so, the memorandum of association shall describe the applicable conditions and include the name and address of the beneficiary.
(2) Instead of including the agreement or provision in the memorandum of association, the memorandum of association may refer to the agreement or the provision or to a report pursuant to § 2-6. In such case the main clauses of the agreement or report shall be cited in the memorandum of association, and the agreement shall be attached to the memorandum of association.
(3) An agreement or provision which has not been included in the memorandum of association according to the first paragraph or cited in the memorandum of association according to the second paragraph above, may not be invoked against the company.

§ 2-5. Expenses of formation to be covered by the company
(1) The company may cover the expenses of its formation to the extent that such expenses do not exceed the share capital contribution. The memorandum of association shall indicate the expenses, how they have been calculated, and the name and address of the person to whom they are paid.
(2) An agreement or provision of content as set forth in the first paragraph is similarly subject to the provisions in § 2-4 second and third paragraph above.

§ 2-6. Report on non-cash share contribution and special rights
(1) If the company is to take over assets or become party to an agreement as mentioned in § 2-4, a report shall be prepared including at least:
1. a description of each payment, acquisition or agreement. If an existing business is to be taken over, the annual financial statement, annual report and auditor’s report of the business for each of the last three years shall be included in or attached to the report. The report shall state the profit or loss from the operation during the period after the last balance sheet date. If annual financial statements for the business are not available, the report shall give account of the result of the operation in the last three years:
2. information about the principles that have been applied to the valuation of the assets the company is to take over;
3. information about the conditions that may be significant to the evaluation of an agreement or provision to the effect that the company will take over assets or become party to an agreement;
4. a declaration to the effect that the assets which will be taken over by the company have a value at least equivalent to the agreed compensation, including the nominal value of the shares that are to be issued as payment, with the addition of any premium. The time of the valuation can at the earliest be four weeks prior to the incorporation, cf. § 2-9. The valuation of intangible assets that are to be taken over as payment for shares shall be separately accounted for.
(2) The founders shall ensure that the report is prepared by one or more independent experts. As independent expert, an auditor shall be engaged. Ministry regulation may provide that also other professional groups may be engaged as independent experts. The provisions on audit examination rights etc. in § 5-2 third paragraph in the Auditors Act will similarly apply.
(3) The report shall be attached to the memorandum of association.
(4) The King can through regulations make exceptions from first to third paragraph for circumstances where shares are subscribed against deposits in tradable securities or money market instruments or against deposits of other assets than money when the value of the deposit is stated in an audited, legally required financial statement.
§ 2-7. Non-cash contributions
Assets that cannot be entered in the balance sheet according to the Accounting Act may not be used as contribution for shares. An obligation to perform work or a service for the company cannot in any case be used as contribution for shares. Assets received by the company in payment for shares shall be set at their actual value, unless it follows from the provisions of the Accounting Act that the contribution shall be valued at its balance sheet value.

§ 2-8. Opening balance sheet
(1) If share contribution can be made by other assets than money, if the company shall become party to an agreement, or if anyone shall be given particular rights as mentioned in § 2-4, the founders shall prepare and date and sign an opening balance sheet to be attached to the memorandum of association.

(2) The opening balance sheet shall be drawn up in accordance with the provisions of the Accounting Act. The auditor shall issue a statement to the effect that the balance sheet has been drawn up in accordance with said provisions. The opening balance sheet with the auditor's statement shall at the earliest be dated four weeks before the formation, cf.§ 2-9. The King may issue further regulations with regard to the requirement of an opening balance. In such regulations, exemptions may be made from the provisions in first to third sentence above.

(3) The company shall have an equity according to the opening balance sheet equivalent at least to the company's share capital. This does not apply insofar as the share capital contribution shall be used for the purposes of covering formation expenses in accordance with § 2-5.

§ 2-9. Formation of the company
The founders shall date and sign the memorandum of association. When all the founders have done so, the shares are subscribed and the company is formed.

§ 2-10. Share subscription which is not binding
(1) A subscription of shares which do not comply with the procedures laid down in § 2-9 is not binding on the company or the subscriber. The same applies to subscription of a share when it is subject to a reservation which is not in accordance with the subscription documents. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the subscription is binding if the company is registered without the company or the subscriber having notified the Register of Business Enterprises that the subscription is not considered binding.

(2) The provision of first paragraph, third sentence applies similarly when the share subscription is void according to general rules of property law transactions. The registration does not however make the subscription binding if it is forged, faked, made under gross coercion or is in conflict with the Guardianship Act.

(3) If a share subscription is not binding, the board of directors may reduce the share capital and retire the share, unless such reduction or retirement would conflict with § 3-1 first paragraph. If the share capital is reduced according to the preceding sentence, the board of directors may obtain a corresponding provision of share capital by separate resolution of new subscription. Chapter 12 on reduction of the share capital does not apply to the board of directors’ resolution to reduce the share capital according to this section.

II. Due date and settlement of claims for payment of shares etc.

§ 2-11. Due date of the company’s claim for share capital contributions
The company’s claim for contribution for shares arises when the shares are subscribed and falls due on the date stipulated in the memorandum of association. This date may not be later than the date on which the company is reported to the Register of Business Enterprises, cf. § 2-18.

§ 2-12. Settlement of claim for contribution
(1) The price of a share may not be lower than the nominal value of the share. If a share is subscribed at a lower price, the nominal value of the share shall nevertheless be contributed.

(2) An agreement to settle the claim for contribution otherwise than as set forth in the memorandum of association does not release the subscriber. Whether or not the memorandum of association provides that the claim may be settled by a setoff, such settlement does not release the subscriber to the extent the setoff may cause a loss to the company or its creditors.

§ 2-13. Delayed settlement of claim for contribution
(1) In the event of delayed settlement of a claim for contribution in cash, the shareholder is obliged to pay interest from the due date according to the Overdue Payments Interest Act.

(2) In the event of delayed settlement of a claim for non-cash contribution, the shareholder is obliged to pay interest to the company based on the value of the payment in the opening balance sheet.
(3) In the event of delayed settlement of a claim for contribution the board of directors shall by registered letter urge the shareholder to settle within a period of seven days from the mailing of the letter. The letter shall inform the shareholder of the consequences of exceeding that period, cf. fifth paragraph. If the shareholder has no known address, the demand for settlement must be published in the Brønnøysund Register Center's electronic bulletin for public announcements.

(4) If the company knows that the share has changed owner or has been pledged, the owner or pledgee shall be notified as provided in the third paragraph. He shall also be notified if the share has been subject to distraint or arrest.

(5) If settlement is not made within the stipulated period, the board of directors may allow another person to subscribe to the share subject to undertaking the payment obligation. If there are no reasonable prospects of collecting the outstanding amount, or the collection costs are disproportionate to the amount involved, the board of directors may instead reduce the share capital and retire the share, unless retirement would be in conflict with § 3-1 first paragraph. If the share capital is reduced pursuant to the preceding sentence, the board of directors may within six months from registration of the company, provide corresponding cover of the share capital by separate resolution of new subscription. The board of directors' resolution to reduce the share capital according to this paragraph is not subject to the provisions of chapter 12.

§ 2-14. Defective non-cash contributions

(1) If a non-cash contribution is factually or legally defective, the shareholder is obliged to compensate the company for the loss it has been inflicted from the defect.

(2) If a legal defect prevents the contribution, the shareholder shall settle by payment of cash.

§ 2-15. Forfeiture of claim for contribution due to limitation of time

If the company forfeits its claim for contribution due to passage of time, the board of directors shall resolve to reduce the share capital and retire the shares and if appropriate to offer new shares for subscription. The rules of § 2-10 third paragraph are similarly applicable.

§ 2-16. Liability for contribution in connection with change of owners of share

If a share changes owner before the claim for contribution has been settled, the new and the former owners are jointly and severally liable for the claim when the transfer has been reported to the company.

§ 2-17. The company’s control over claims for contribution etc.

The company’s claim for contribution may not be assigned. Nor may it be deposited as security or be subject to distraint for debt.

III. Report to the Register of Business Enterprises

§ 2-18. Reporting of the company to the Register of Business Enterprises

(1) The company shall be reported to the Register of Business Enterprises within three months of signature of the memorandum of association.

(2) Before the company is reported to the Register of Business Enterprises, the share capital contribution must have been paid in full. The results of any technical assistance, research and development services etc. shall have been made available to the company. In the report to the Register of Business Enterprises, it shall be confirmed that the company has received the share capital contributions. Such confirmation shall be given by the auditor. In the event that the share capital contributions shall be settled solely in cash, the confirmation may be given by a financial institution.

(3) If the company has not been reported to the Register of Business Enterprises by the end of the above period, it may not be registered. Obligations under the memorandum of association are in such case no longer binding. Nor are they binding if registration is refused due to errors that cannot be remedied.

§ 2-19. Responsibility for reporting the paid up share capital

(1) The directors and auditor or financial institution who have given a confirmation in accordance with § 2-18 second paragraph, are jointly and severally liable for any shortfall in the share capital which has been reported to the Register of Business Enterprises and has been confirmed as paid or otherwise settled. This rule applies whether or not any loss has been caused.

(2) Liability under paragraph one does not apply to any shortfall due to valuation of non-cash asset contributions.
§ 2-20. Rights and obligations before entry in the Register of Business Enterprises

(1) Before the public limited liability company has been registered, the company as such may not acquire other rights and incur other obligations to third parties than those following from the memorandum of association or from statute.

(2) For obligations that have been incurred in the company’s name before the registration and for which the company is not liable under first paragraph, the persons who have incurred the obligation are personally, jointly and severally liable except as otherwise agreed with the creditor. Upon registration, the company takes over the obligation.

(3) If before the registration an agreement has been concluded which does not bind the company under first paragraph, and if the other party to the agreement knew that the company was not registered, the other party may disregard the agreement if the company has not been reported to the Register of Business Enterprises within the period mentioned in § 2-18 or the report is refused before the expiry of the period. If the party was unaware that the company was not registered, he or she may revoke the agreement until the company is registered. The provisions of this paragraph may be set aside by agreement.

Chapter 3. Company capital

I. Nondistributable equity

§ 3-1. Share capital

(1) A public limited liability company shall have a share capital of at least one million Norwegian kroner.

(2) The share capital shall be represented by one or more shares to which the shareholder rights relate. The shares shall have the same nominal value.

§ 3-2. Fund for unrealized gains

(1) The company shall have a fund for unrealized gains. If the company estimates assets at real value, it shall allocate to the fund a positive difference between booked balance value of each asset or group of assets and their acquisition cost taking into consideration the effect of deferred tax. This applies correspondingly to estimates of debt at real value. The company shall allocate to the fund in the same manner as described in the second sentence if the company, by adjustment of value or otherwise, books assets at a value exceeding the acquisition cost.

(2) The duty to allocate to the fund for unrealized gains does not include differences pursuant to the first paragraph relating to the assessment of:
   1. financial instruments in accordance with the Accounting Act § 5-8,
   2. money items in foreign currency,
   3. other items when determined in regulations issued by the Ministry.

(3) The fund may be dissolved when and to the extent that the basis for the allocation is no longer present.

(4) The Ministry may by regulations issue rules regarding the calculation of the difference pursuant to the first paragraph.

§ 3-3. Fund for valuation differences

The company shall have a fund for valuation differences. If the company books company investments in subsidiaries, affiliated companies or mutually controlled undertakings using the equity method or the gross method, the company shall allocate to the fund a positive difference between the investments’ booked balance value and their acquisition cost. The company may omit to allocate to the fund a difference which is caused by profit from a transaction between an investor and a company booked using the equity method. Such difference shall at no time be higher than the investor’s remaining unrealized profit.

§ 3-3a. (repealed by Act of 14 June 2013 No. 40)

II. Equity requirements

§ 3-4. Requirement of adequate equity

The company shall at all times have an equity and liquidity which is adequate in terms of the risk and scope of the company’s business.

§ 3-5. Obligation to act on loss of equity

(1) If the equity is presumed to be less than adequate in terms of the risk and scope of the company’s business, the board of directors shall forthwith deal with the matter. The same shall apply if the company’s equity is assumed to be less than half the share capital. The board of directors shall within a reasonable time call a general meeting and report to it on the company’s financial position. If the company does not have adequate equity in accordance with § 3-4, the board of directors shall propose to the general meeting measures to restore the equity. In such cases as mentioned in the second sentence of this paragraph, the general meeting shall be convened within six months at the latest.

(2) If the board of directors does not find it justified to propose measures as mentioned in first paragraph fourth sentence, or such measures are not feasible, it shall propose liquidation of the company.

III. Distributions

§ 3-6. Distribution from the company etc.
(1) Any distribution from the company may only be done in accordance with the rules regarding dividends, capital reduction, merger or demerger of companies, and repayment following liquidation.

(2) Distribution includes any transfer of values which directly or indirectly benefits the shareholder. The value shall be the actual value on the date of transfer.

(3) When provisions in this Act stipulates amount limitations for the right to distribution from the company, it is an asset’s balance sheet value that is determinative when considering whether the value falls within the limitations. The Ministry may by way of regulations decide that another value can be relied upon in relation to stipulated distributions.

(4) The Ministry may by way of regulations issue rules regarding the calculation of distributable and tied-up equity when the annual accounts are prepared in a currency other than Norwegian kroner.

§ 3-7. Unlawful distributions
(1) If a distribution has been made by the company contrary to statutory provisions of this Act, the recipient shall return the received assets. In the event of a distribution of dividends or repayment following capital reduction, merger, demerger or liquidation, the preceding rule is nevertheless inapplicable if the recipient, at the time he received the distribution, neither understood nor ought to have understood that it was unlawful.

(2) Anybody who on behalf of the company assists in adopting or carrying out a resolution for unlawful distribution and who understood or ought to have understood that the distribution was unlawful, is liable for ensuring that the distribution is returned to the company. Such liability may be modified in accordance with § 5-2 of the Liability Act.

IV. Transactions between the company and shareholders etc.

§ 3-8. Agreements with shareholders or members of the company’s administration etc.
(1) An agreement between the company and a shareholder, a shareholder’s parent company, a director or the general manager shall not be binding on the company unless the general meeting has approved the agreement if the consideration from the company has a real value greater than one twentieth of the share capital at the time of the acquisition or sale. This rule does not apply to:
1. agreement concluded in accordance with the provisions in § 2-4, cf. § 2-6, and § 10-2;
2. agreement as mentioned in § 6-10 and § 6-16a.
3. agreement concerning the transfer of securities at a price according to public quotation;
4. agreement entered into as part of the company’s normal business and contains price and other terms that are customary for such agreements,
5. agreement covered by § 8-7 third paragraph first sentence no. 2 and 3, cf. second paragraph, if the parent company or the legal person owns all shares in the company,
6. agreement entered into in accordance with rules given in or pursuant to § 8-10.

(2) The board of directors shall ensure that a report is prepared on the agreement according to the rules of § 2-6 first and second paragraph. The report shall contain a statement to the effect that there is a fair balance between the value of the consideration to be paid by the company and the value of the consideration to be received by the company. The report shall be attached to the notice to the general meeting and it shall with undue delay be notified to the Register of Business Enterprises.

(3) Performance according to an agreement which is not binding on the company shall be returned. The provisions of § 3-7 second paragraph shall apply similarly.

(4) The provisions of first through third paragraph apply similarly when the agreement has been concluded with a shareholder’s related party or a related party to a shareholder’s parent company, or with anybody who acts by virtue of agreement or understanding with a party as mentioned in the provisions of the first paragraph.
§ 3-9. Intercompany transactions

(1) Transactions between companies of the same group shall be based on customary business terms and principles. Major agreements between companies of the same group shall be made in writing.

(2) Costs, losses, revenues and gains that cannot be attributed to any specific company of the group, shall be divided among the companies of the group in accordance with sound business practice.

(3) Distribution of dividends and intercompany contributions from a company of the group to the parent company and other companies of the group shall in any one financial year altogether not exceed the limit set forth in § 8-1.

Chapter 4. Shareholders, transfer of shares etc.

I. The shareholders’ rights in the company

§ 4-1. The equality principle/share classes

(1) All shares carry equal rights in the company. Notwithstanding the foregoing provision, the articles of association may provide that there shall be different kinds of shares (shares of different classes). The articles of association shall in such case specify the distinctions between the share classes, and the total nominal value of the shares within each class.

(2) The articles of association may provide that shares of one class may be exchanged for shares of another class.

§ 4-2. Entry in the register of shareholders as a condition for exercising shareholder’s rights

(1) The transferee of a share may only exercise the rights that pertain to a shareholder when the transfer has been entered in the register of shareholders, or when the transfer has been reported and proved without being prevented by restrictions following from the provisions of §§ 4-16 through 4-23 below. This rule does not apply to the right to dividends and other distributions and the right to new shares in a capital increase.

(2) In connection with a change of ownership, the transferee and transferor may agree that the rights that pertain to a shareholder may be exercised by the transferor until such rights have been transferred to the transferee.

(3) The articles of association may provide that the right to attend and vote at the general meeting may only be exercised when the transfer has been entered in the register of shareholders five working days prior to the general meeting (date of registration).

§ 4-3. Jointly owned shares

If two or more shareholders own shares jointly, they shall appoint one of the owners to act as shareholder towards the company, except as otherwise provided in the articles of association.

II. Register of shareholders

§ 4-4. Requirement of register of shareholders

(1) When a public limited liability company has been formed, the board of directors shall without delay ensure the creation of a register of shareholders for the company in a securities registry. If the register of shareholders is established before the company has been registered in the Register of Business Enterprises, this shall be stated. When registration with the Register of Business Enterprises has been completed, the board of directors shall report this to the securities registry without delay.

(2) The register of shareholders shall state:

1. the name of the company;
2. the share capital of the company;
3. the nominal value of the shares;
4. each shareholder’s name, date of birth and address, or - for legal entities - the name, organization number and address;

8. whether the shares may be redeemed without the shareholder’s consent;
9. whether there are special obligations associated with the shares other than payment of capital contribution.
§ 4-5. Access to the register of shareholders
The register of shareholders shall be accessible to anyone. The King may issue rules regarding the right to access according to the preceding sentence, and may decide that the company shall upon request issue a transcript of the register of shareholders subject to a stipulated fee.

§ 4-6. Duty to disclose amendments of the articles of association
If an amendment of the articles of association may cause a misinterpretation of the registered articles of association that may lead to loss or inconvenience, it is incumbent upon the board of directors to ensure an amendment of these entries.

§ 4-7. Change of owners
In the event of change of ownership, the former owner shall forthwith ensure that it is reported to the securities registry.

§ 4-8. Capital increase

§ 4-9. Share certificates
(1) When a shareholder has been registered in the register of shareholders, the company shall notify the shareholder of such registration.
(2) The notification shall be dated and include the information about the shareholder and his or her registered shareholdings. In the event of amendments in the registered information, the company shall notify the shareholder of such amendment.

§ 4-10. Trustee registration
(1) A bank or any other trustee approved by the King may be entered in the register of shareholders instead of a foreign shareholder when the shares are approved for trade on a Norwegian regulated market. A foreign shareholder is a company registered in a foreign country, except when the company’s head office is situated in Norway, and a foreign national who is not resident in Norway. The King may consent to trustee registration of shares belonging to foreign shareholders also in other cases than those mentioned in the first sentence of this paragraph. Another Norwegian securities registry may in accordance with rules issued by the King create a partial register which is incorporated in the register of shareholders on behalf of a shareholder. § 4-5 applies similarly for the partial register. The company may in the articles of association stipulate that the company’s shares may not be subject to a trustee registration.
(2) The register of shareholders shall set forth the name and address of the trustee and state that he is the trustee of the shares. The register shall also state the number of shares comprised at any time under the trusteeship.
(3) A trustee may not exercise other rights in the company than the right to receive dividends or other payments on the shares comprised under the trusteeship, including the allotment of new shares in connection with a capital increase. The trustee is authorized to receive such payments.
(4) If so demanded by the company or a public authority, the trustee is obliged to name each owner of the shares comprised under the trusteeship, and disclose the number of shares belonging to each owner.
(5) The King may issue regulations regarding the registration of trustees, and as to whether the trustee is obliged to furnish public authorities with information about the ownership of the shares that are held in trust, and the obligation to furnish public authorities or others with periodical reports about the ownership of the shares.

III. Register of subscription rights

§ 4-11. Register of subscription rights

(3) The articles of association are binding upon the acquirer even if the register of shareholders contains incorrect or incomplete information. Any restriction in the right to transfer or pledge the shares which has not been registered may however only be invoked against the acquirer if

The provisions of § 10-6, cf. § 8-16 of the Enforcement Act regarding the minimum acceptable bid, do not apply to the sale. If legal proceedings have been initiated to try the validity of a refusal decision, compulsory sale may at the earliest take place two months subsequent to a legally enforceable judgment.

VII. Provisions of the articles of association requiring a transferee or owner of a share to have certain qualities

§ 4-18. Provisions of the articles of association requiring a transferee or owner of a share to have certain qualities

§ 4-22. Who has the pre-emption right
(1) All shareholders have equal priority with regard to the right to acquire the share or the shares.
(2) When the pre-emption right is exercised by two or more shareholders in the company, the shares will be allotted to them in proportion to the number of shares in the company already owned by these shareholders. If there are two or more share classes in the company, shareholders of the same class have a preferential right over shareholders of other classes.

The general meeting’s resolution to raise a loan or to authorize the raising of a loan requires a majority as for amendments of the articles of association.

Chapter 12. Reduction of share capital

§ 12-1. Resolution of the general meeting

(1) Any resolution to reduce the share capital shall be adopted by the general meeting. The amount for which of the reduction applies (the reduction amount) may be used only for:
1. coverage of loss that cannot be covered otherwise;
2. distribution to the shareholders or retirement of the company’s own shares pursuant to chapter 9;
3. allocation to a fund to be used as decided by the general meeting.

(2) The resolution shall state the amount of the reduction and the purpose for which it shall be used. It shall also state whether the capital reduction shall be carried out by a redemption of shares or by a reduction in the nominal amount of the shares. A resolution as mentioned in first paragraph, no. 2 or 3 may only be adopted on the basis of a proposal from the board of directors or with the consent of the board.

(3) If in connection with the reduction any distribution shall be made to the shareholders in an amount larger than the amount of the reduction, the general meeting’s resolution shall set forth such higher amount and how it is to be covered.

(4) The provisions in §§ 12-1 through 12-7 do not apply to a reduction in the share capital pursuant to § 2-10 third paragraph, § 2-13 fifth paragraph, § 2-15, § 10-7, cf. § 2-10 third paragraph, § 10-12 fourth paragraph, cf. § 2-13 fifth paragraph and § 2-15.
§ 12-2. Calculation of loss. Requirement of equity etc.

(1) For the purposes of calculating the company’s loss under § 12-1 first paragraph no. 1, the balance sheet for the company’s last approved annual financial statement shall be applied. The calculation may be based on an interim balance sheet that has been prepared and audited in accordance with the rules applying to the annual financial statement.

(2) A resolution as mentioned in § 12-1 first paragraph no. 2 or 3 may not involve an amount which will result, after the reduction, in insufficient coverage of the remaining share capital and other nondistributable equity pursuant to §§ 3-2 and 3-3. For the purposes of calculating the amount, the balance sheet for the last financial year shall be applied, however so that it is the registered share capital at the time of decision that applies. § 8-1 second to fourth paragraph shall apply correspondingly. The calculation may also be conducted on the basis of an interim balance which is prepared and audited pursuant to the rules for annual financial statements and approved by the general meeting. The interim balance day may not lie further back in time than six months before the day when the resolution of share capital reduction is made. The auditor shall confirm that after the reduction, the company’s nondistributable equity will be fully covered.

§ 12-3. Board of directors’ resolution to reduce the share capital

(1) The board of directors shall prepare a proposal for the general meeting’s resolution to reduce the share capital, and proposals for the amendments of the articles of association that are necessary. The proposals shall be included in or attached to the notice of the general meeting.

(2) The proposals shall be explained. Circumstances that should be taken into account with respect to the capital reduction shall be briefly accounted for. If the general meeting does not at the same time deal with the annual financial statement, the account shall also comprise events that have occurred after the last balance sheet date, which are of substantial importance to the company.

(3) The notice shall state that the last adopted annual financial statement with the auditor’s report is available at the company’s office for inspection, unless the general meeting is at the same time to deal with the annual financial statement.

§ 12-4. Report to the Register of Business Enterprises

The general meeting’s resolution to reduce the share capital shall be filed to the Register of Business Enterprises. If a share capital reduction is not notified to the Register of Business Enterprises within two months after the resolution has been made, the reduction is void.

§ 12-5. Taking effect without notice to the creditors

(1) If the entire amount of the reduction shall be used to cover losses according to § 12-1 first paragraph no. 1, the capital reduction is deemed effective when the notification under § 12-4 has been registered. A resolution to distribute dividends may in such case not be adopted until three years have elapsed from the registration in the Register of Business Enterprises, unless the share capital subsequently has been increased by an amount at least equal to the reduction, or the provisions in § 12-6 have been complied with.

(2) The capital reduction is further deemed effective when the notification under § 12-4 has been registered if the company at the same time as the notification on the capital reduction notifies the creditors that the share capital has been increased by the subscription of new shares against consideration so that the company’s nondistributable equity is at least equal to the amount before the capital reduction.

§ 12-6. Taking effect following notice to the creditors

If the amount of the reduction is to be used wholly or partly as mentioned in § 12-1 first paragraph no. 2 or 3, the following rules will apply:

1. The Register of Business Enterprises shall, as soon as the resolution to reduce the capital has been registered, announce the resolution in their electronic bulletin for public announcement and notify the company’s creditors that any objection to the reduction being made effective must be reported to the company within six weeks from the date of announcement.

2. If a creditor with an undisputed and matured claim raises any objection before the period mentioned in no. 1 has expired, the resolution for a capital reduction may not be made effective until his claim has been paid. A creditor with a disputed or unmatured claim may require adequate security unless his claim is already adequately secured. The District Court resolves any disputes as to whether a claim exists and whether the security is adequate. The court may refuse a demand for security under the second sentence when it is evident that there is no claim or that the capital reduction will not reduce the creditor’s prospects of collecting payment. A request for a decision by the court must be presented within two weeks after the creditor presented the demand for payment or security.

3. When the period pursuant to no. 1 has expired, and relations with the creditors that have made objections have been clarified according to no. 2, the resolution for the capital reduction is deemed effective when notification on this matter is registered with the Register of Business Enterprises. A statement signed by the members of the board of directors and auditor confirming that the relations with the company’s creditors do not prevent the resolution from taking effect, shall accompany the report.
4. Any distribution to the shareholders may only take place when the share capital reduction is deemed effective. Any distribution made in connection with the capital reduction shall be registered on the shareholder's account with the securities registry.
5. The capital reduction is void if a report under no. 3 has not arrived at the Register within one year from the resolution to reduce the capital.

§ 12-7. Redemption of shares according to the articles of association
(1) The company’s articles of association may provide for the redemption of shares by a reduction of the share capital. Both the company and the shareholder may be given a right to require redemption.
(2) Redemption pursuant to a provision in the articles of association may be carried out without notice to the creditors under § 12-6 provided that
1. the redemption relates to shares that have been issued after or simultaneous with the registration of the right to redemption being registered in the Register of Business Enterprises, and
2. the shares are redeemed without distribution, or the distribution is within the scope of the funds that the company may use to distribute dividend pursuant to, and
3. an amount equivalent to the par value of the redeemed shares is allocated to a restricted fund.

Chapter 13. Merger (amalgamation of companies)

I. Scope etc.

§ 13-1. The companies comprised
The provisions of this chapter apply to mergers between public limited liability companies, and mergers of one or more public limited liability companies with one or more private limited liability companies. The provisions in this chapter shall also apply to mergers between limited liability companies if the consideration in shares is to be paid by a public limited liability company, cf. § 13-2 second paragraph.

§ 13-2. Range of application of the merger rules
(1) Company mergers are subject to the merger rules of the present chapter when a company (the assignee company) is to take over the assets, rights and obligations of another company (the assigning company) as a whole against consideration to the shareholders consisting of
1. shares in the assignee company, or
2. such shares with an addition which may not exceed 20 % of the total consideration.
(2) If the assignee company belongs to a group of companies, and if one or more of the group companies altogether hold more than 90 % of both the shares and votes at the general meeting of the assignee company, the consideration in shares may instead of shares be shares in the parent company or be shares in another subsidiary company in which the parent company alone or through subsidiaries hold more than 90 % of both the shares and the votes at the general meeting. A capital increase in the parent company or in the subsidiary may be executed through the issuance by the assignee company of a receivable which is equivalent to the equity accruing to the assignee company from the merger, as payment for the shares. This receivable ranks after the other creditors of the assignee company.

II. Merger resolution

§ 13-3. Approval of the merger plan
(1) The boards of directors of the companies that are to be merged shall prepare a joint merger plan. The plan shall be prepared according to the provisions in §§ 13-6 through 13-8 and signed by the directors of the boards.
(2) In each company the merger resolution is adopted by the general meeting approving the merger plan with the majority required for amendments of the articles of association. In an assigning company such resolution may be adopted regardless of whether it has been resolved to liquidate the company, unless a distribution to the shareholders has commenced.
(3) The approval in an assigning company will also be considered as a subscription of the shares that are to be received as consideration from the assignee company.
(4) The board of directors in each of the merging companies shall provide the general meeting in the company, and the board of directors in the other companies participating in the merger with information regarding material changes in assets, rights and obligations that have taken place between the signing of the merger plan and the date on which the general meetings that shall adopt resolutions regarding the merger deals with the matter.

§ 13-4. Issue of shares in the assignee company
The shares which the assignee company shall issue as compensation to the shareholders in the assigning company shall be issued according to the provisions on capital increase in chapter 10 (merger by assignment) or according to the provisions on incorporation in chapter 2 (merger by incorporation of a new company formation) having regard to any specific provisions in this present chapter.

§ 13-5. Board of directors’ resolution in the assignee company
(1) If the capital increase in the assignee company can be carried out pursuant to an authorisation to the board of directors in accordance with the provisions in §§ 10-14 through 10-19 which state that it comprises a merger, the merger resolution may be adopted by the board of directors. If the company has a corporate assembly, however, the resolution may, however, not be adopted by the board of directors unless the merger plan has been approved by the corporate assembly.

(2) When a public limited liability company owns nine tenths of the shares in another public limited liability company and may exercise a corresponding part of the votes that may be cast in the general meeting, the resolution in the parent company to merge with its subsidiary may be adopted by the board of directors. The same shall apply in the event that a private limited liability company owns nine tenths or more of the shares in a public limited liability company and may exercise a corresponding part of the votes that may be cast in the general meeting.

(3) The resolution may not be adopted by the board of directors if the shareholders representing at least five per cent of the share capital so demand within two weeks after notification to the shareholders have been sent pursuant to § 13-12 second paragraph. The board of directors shall in such case ensure that a general meeting is held within one month following the date of the request.

III. Merger plan and other documents

§ 13-6. Contents of the merger plan
(1) A merger plan shall at least state:
1. the names of the companies, the municipalities in which they have their registered offices, their addresses and organization numbers;
2. from which date transactions in an assigning company shall for accounting purposes be deemed to be performed for account of the assignee company;
3. the consideration which shall be contributed to the shareholders in the assigning company or companies;
4. conditions for exercising rights as shareholder in the assignee company, and for entry in the register of shareholders;

§ 15-3. Transformation date etc.

The company is deemed a private limited liability company from the date on which the transforming resolution is registered in the Register of Business Enterprises.
Chapter 16. Dissolution and liquidation

I. Dissolution and liquidation by resolution of the general meeting

§ 16-1. Resolution to dissolve

(1) A resolution to dissolve the company is adopted by the general meeting with the majority required for amendments of the articles of association, except as otherwise provided by statute.

(2) If any circumstance has occurred which according to the articles of association shall cause the company to be dissolved, or if the company is to be dissolved as a consequence of statutory provision, the general meeting shall as soon as possible adopt a resolution to dissolve the company. The resolution is adopted with a majority of the votes cast.

(3) The general meeting may not adopt a resolution to dissolve the company after its dissolution has been decided by court judgment or decree according to the provisions in this chapter.

§ 16-2. Liquidation board. The company’s other bodies

(1) When it has been resolved to dissolve the company, the general meeting or the corporate assembly shall elect a liquidation board which shall replace the board of directors and general manager. The election is effective for an indefinite period, however so that there is a period of notice of three months applicable for the members of the liquidation board.

(2) The provisions regarding the board of directors in chapter 6, including the provisions on employees’ rights to elect members of the board of directors, will similarly apply to the liquidation board.

(3) The provisions regarding the general meeting and corporate assembly will apply during the liquidation where-ever appropriate.

§ 16-3. Report to the Register of Business Enterprises

A resolution to dissolve the company shall forthwith be filed to the Register of Business Enterprises. The report shall include information on the liquidation board.

§ 16-4. Notification to creditors

(1) Upon registration of the notification of dissolution, the Register of Business Enterprises shall publish the announcement of the resolution to dissolve the company in their electronic bulletin for public announcement. In the announcement the company’s creditors shall be notified that they must report their claims to the chairman of the liquidation board within six weeks from the date of the notice. The name and address of the chairman of the liquidation board shall appear from the announcement.

(2) All creditors whose address is known shall whenever possible be separately notified by the company.

§ 16-5. Position of the company during the liquidation

(1) When a resolution to dissolve the company has been adopted, the company shall under its name on letters, announcements and other documents add the words “under liquidation”.

(2) The company’s business may continue during the liquidation to the extent desirable for an appropriate conclusion of the liquidation.

(3) During the liquidation, annual financial statements shall be submitted, audited and sent to the Register of Company Accounts according to the same provisions as would otherwise apply.

§ 16-6. Liquidation balance sheet etc.

(1) The liquidation board shall prepare a list of the company’s assets, rights and obligations, and prepare a balance sheet having regard to the liquidation.

(2) The list and the balance sheet duly audited shall be made available at the company’s office for inspection by the shareholders. A copy of the balance sheet with the auditor’s declaration shall be sent to all shareholders whose address is known.

§ 16-7. Payment of the company’s obligations

(1) The liquidation committee shall ensure that the obligations of the company are paid except where the creditor has waived his claim or otherwise agrees to accept another debtor.

(2) If a creditor cannot be found or otherwise refuses to receive his outstanding debt, the amount shall be deposited with Norges Bank according to the provisions in the Act of 17 February 1939 No. 2 on deposits for indebtedness.
§ 16-8. Converting the company’s assets into cash
The company’s assets shall be converted into cash wherever necessary to meet its obligations. The assets shall furthermore be converted into cash unless the shareholders agree on distribution in kind.

§ 16-9. Distribution to shareholders
(1) Any distribution to shareholders of profits other than dividends according to § 8-1 may not be effected before the company’s obligations have been discharged and at least six weeks have elapsed since the last announcement of the notification to creditors in the Brønnøysund Register Centre’s electronic publication pursuant to § 16-4.
(2) The preceding provision notwithstanding, distribution may be effected if the only obligations left are uncertain or disputed and a sufficient amount is set aside to cover them. Except as otherwise agreed, the amount shall be entered on a joint account of the company and the creditor concerned, so that any withdrawal is subject to both parties’ written consent or final court judgment.
(3) The distribution shall be registered on the shareholder’s account with the securities registry.

§ 16-10. Final dissolution
(1) On completion of the distribution an audited financial statement shall be submitted to the general meeting. When the financial statement has been approved, a notification shall be sent to the Register of Business Enterprises stating that the company has been finally dissolved.
(2) The provisions in §§ 17-3 through 17-5 apply also after the final dissolution.
(3) The liquidation board shall ensure that the accounting records and books pursuant to § 13 of the Bookkeeping Act are kept for at least ten years, as required by statute, following the final dissolution. Registered accounting data shall be reproducible as provided in § 6 of the Bookkeeping Act for at least ten years following the final dissolution. The liquidation board shall also ensure the safe custody of a transcript of the register of shareholders, at the time of registration of the final dissolution of the company.

§ 16-11. Subsequent distribution
Amounts set aside pursuant to § 16-9 second paragraph that may accrue to the company, distribution to the shareholders which is not claimed, and whatever other assets may prove to be owned by the dissolved company, will be subject to a subsequent distribution. If the amount is of such small quantity that a subsequent distribution is disproportionately inconvenient or costly, the liquidation board may instead employ the amount for the benefit of charitable, humanitarian or environmental purposes.

§ 16-12. Liability for unpaid obligations
(1) To creditors who have not been paid pursuant to § 16-7 nor been adequately secured by an allocation pursuant to § 16-9 second paragraph, the shareholders are jointly and severally liable up to the value of the distribution each of them has received pursuant to § 16-9. With respect to any such creditor the members of the liquidation board are moreover liable jointly and severally without limitations if they fail to prove that they have acted diligently.
(2) In the recourse proceedings the liability shall be split amongst the shareholders in proportion to the amount distributed to each of them. The provisions of § 2 third paragraph of the Promissory Notes Act of 17 February 1939 No. 1 will similarly apply.

§ 16-13. Revocation of resolution to dissolve
(1) A resolution to dissolve the company may be revoked by the general meeting with the majority required for the resolution to dissolve. If the company has been dissolved by virtue of provisions of statute or its articles of association, the resolution may only be revoked when the reason for the dissolution is no longer operative.
(2) The resolution may not be revoked if the company has made a distribution to the shareholders of assets other than dividends. If the equity capital is less than the share capital, the share capital must moreover be reduced to the amount which is still left. If the equity which is left is less than the minimum requirement pursuant to § 3-1, it must be restored to at least that amount.
(3) Any revocation of a resolution to dissolve the company and the company’s new board of directors shall forthwith be filed to the Register of Business Enterprises.

§ 16-14. The District Court assumes responsibility for the liquidation
(1) The District Court may decide by decree to assume responsibility for the liquidation of the company when special reasons so indicate provided that
1. the company has not been notified as finally dissolved to the Register of Business Enterprises at the latest one year after registration of the report pursuant to § 16-3, or
2. shareholders representing at least one-fifth of the share capital so demand.

(2) The board of directors or if appropriate the liquidation board shall be invited to express its opinion before the decision is made. The Register of Business Enterprises shall inform the District Court that the period allowed pursuant to first paragraph, no. 1 has expired.

(3) If the court has assumed the liquidation, the further liquidation proceedings shall follow the provisions in § 16-18. The court's decree shall have the effect of a decree pronouncing bankruptcy under chapter VIII of the Bankruptcy Act.

(4) If the company has been dissolved by virtue of provisions of statute or its articles of association, its estate can only be returned to the company pursuant to § 136 of the Bankruptcy Act if the reason for the dissolution is no longer operative. The provisions in § 16-13 second paragraph will similarly apply.

II. Dissolution and liquidation by virtue of decree of the city court

§ 16-15. Dissolution by decree of the city court

(1) Unless the general meeting adopts a resolution to dissolve the company, the District Court shall by decree decide to dissolve the company in any of the following cases:
1. when the company must be dissolved as a consequence of provisions of statute or articles of association;
2. when the company has not reported to the Register of Business Enterprises a board of directors which satisfies the requirements of provisions issued in or pursuant to statute;
3. when the company has not reported to the Register of Business Enterprises any general manager who satisfies the conditions provided by statute;
4. when the company has not reported to the Register of Business Enterprises any auditor who satisfies the conditions provided by statute;
5. when the annual financial statement, annual report and auditor's report which the company is to send to the Register of Company Accounts pursuant to § 8-2 of the Accounting Act have not been submitted within six months after the period allowed for such submission, or when the Register of Company Accounts at the end of the period is unable to approve the material that has been sent as annual financial statement, annual report and auditor's report.

(2) The court may only decide to dissolve the company as a consequence of a provision of the articles of association when a shareholder has submitted a demand to that effect and the general meeting has failed to adopt a resolution to dissolve pursuant to § 16-1.

§ 16-16. Consideration of matters regarding dissolution under § 16-15

(1) When the conditions in § 16-15 first paragraph no. 1 through 4 have been satisfied, the Register of Business Enterprises shall send the company notice thereof. In cases as mentioned in § 16-15 first paragraph no. 5, the notice is sent by the Register of Company Accounts. The company shall be allowed a period of one month to remedy the matter and will be informed of the consequences of exceeding that period.

(2) If the company has not remedied the matter by the end of the period, the Register of Business Enterprises or the Register of Company Accounts shall repeat the notice by announcement in the Brønnøysund Register Center's electronic bulletin for public announcements. The announcement shall state that the conditions for dissolving the company are satisfied, and that the company is allowed a period of four weeks from the electronic announcement to remedy the matter. The consequences of exceeding this period shall also be stated.

(3) Wherever appropriate the notice under this provision may instead be given by the District Court.

§ 16-17. District Court decree

(1) If a notice to the company has been announced in accordance with § 16-16 second paragraph and the company has exceeded the period in the notice, the Register of Business Enterprises or the Register of Company Accounts shall notify the District Court thereof.

(2) The court shall without additional notice decide by decree to dissolve the company pursuant to § 16-15, unless such decision to dissolve has already been adopted by the general meeting. The decree has the same effect as a decree to open bankruptcy proceedings under chapter VIII of the Bankruptcy Act.

(3) If major social economic considerations so indicate, the King may resolve that the company shall be permitted to continue operations, and that the case shall not be sent to the District Court for compulsory dissolution, but that the company shall be given an extended deadline before compulsory dissolution is implemented. The King shall, in such case, resolve that the company shall pay a current coercive fine to the state with effect from a date to be stipulated until the matter has been rectified.
§ 16-18. Liquidation of the company
   (1) When the District Court has decided to dissolve the company, the company shall be liquidated in accordance with the provisions in the Bankruptcy Act and the Creditors Recovery Act.
   (2) The estate can only be returned to the company in accordance with § 136 of the Bankruptcy Act if the grounds for dissolution are no longer operative.

III. Dissolution and liquidation by court judgment upon demand by shareholder

§ 16-19. Liquidation by court judgment
   (1) A shareholder may demand that the company be dissolved by judgment of the court when any of its bodies or others representing the company have acted in conflict with §§ 5-21 and 6-28 and especially weighty reasons call for dissolution as a consequence thereof.
   (2) When the company has submitted a motion in court to that effect, the judgment may instead provide that the shareholder’s shares shall be redeemed by the company. The redemption amount shall be stipulated in the judgment with due regard to the company’s financial position and opportunities. If the redemption has not been completed by the period stated in the judgment, and this is not due to the shareholder’s conduct, the shareholder may require the District Court to decide by decree to dissolve the company.
   (3) If the judgment states that the company shall be dissolved, § 16-18 will similarly apply. The judgment has the same effect as a decree to open bankruptcy proceedings under chapter VIII of the Bankruptcy Act.

Chapter 17. Damages etc.

§ 17-1. Liability for damages
   (1) The company, a shareholder or others may hold the general manager, a member of the board of directors, member of the corporate assembly, independent expert, investigator or shareholder liable for any damage which they, in the capacity mentioned, have intentionally or negligently caused such party.
   (2) The company, a shareholder or others may also hold a party who, intentionally or negligently, has contributed to damage as mentioned in first paragraph, liable for the damage. Damages can be claimed from the contributor even though the person who caused the damage cannot be held liable because he or she did not act with intent or negligence.

§ 17-2. Modification
   Liability for damages pursuant to § 17-1 may be modified pursuant to § 5-2 of the Liability Act.

§ 17-3. The company’s decision to bring a claim

   (2) The provisions in first paragraph will apply similarly to the conclusion of any advance agreement between the company and any person as mentioned in § 17-1 which governs or restricts their liability.

§ 17-4. Claim on behalf of the company
   (1) If the company’s general meeting has adopted a resolution of no liability or rejected a proposal to hold liable any person as mentioned in § 17-1, shareholders owning at least one-tenth of the share capital may bring a claim on behalf of the company and in its name. If the company has 100 or more shareholders, the claim may alternatively be brought by shareholders constituting at least 10 per cent of the total number. If legal action for liability has been brought, it may continue regardless of whether or not some shareholders withdraw or dispose of their shares.
   (2) Legal action for liability must be brought by a jointly appointed attorney within a period of three months following the resolution of the general meeting. If investigation has been demanded pursuant to § 5-25 through § 5-28, the period runs from the date on which the demand was finally rejected or the investigation terminated.
   (3) The costs of bringing legal action are of no concern to the company. However, the costs may be recovered from the company by an amount limited to that which has benefited the company as a result of the action.
   (4) This section does not apply when a resolution as mentioned in first paragraph has been adopted with the majority required for amendments of the articles of association. The same rule applies in the event of conciliation settlements.
§ 17-5. Resolution of discharge of liability
If the general meeting has adopted a resolution of no liability or to refrain from holding anybody liable, the company may nevertheless pursue a claim based on circumstances of which the general meeting in essential respects was not given correct or complete information at the time of the resolution.

§ 17-6. Competing claims
Shareholders, creditors or others who have suffered a loss because the company has incurred a loss are bound by the company’s loss settlement, their claims ranking after those of the company.

§ 17-7. Other claims on behalf of the company
(1) The provisions in §§ 17-3, 17-4 and 17-5 will similarly apply to the authority to request criminal prosecution and institute private criminal proceedings.
(2) The provisions in §§ 17-4 and 17-5 will apply similarly to the company’s claim for recovery pursuant to §§ 3-7, 3-8 and 8-11, and the company’s claim for remuneration pursuant to § 6-17 above.

Chapter 18. Procedural rules etc.

§ 18-1. Legal action between the company and the board of directors
(1) In the event of legal action between the company and the board of directors or individual directors, the board of directors shall convene the general meeting for election of one or more persons who shall act on behalf of the company in the proceedings. This rule does not apply if such election has been completed at the time the legal action was decided.
(2) If the general meeting fails to hold an election as aforesaid, documents to the company may be served to one of the shareholders.
(3) The corporate assembly, if the company has one, represents the company in the proceedings. Documents to the company will be served to the chairman of the corporate assembly.
(4) The present section does not apply to proceedings pursuant to § 17-4.

§ 18-2. Legal action between the company and the corporate assembly
In the event of legal action between the company and its corporate assembly or a majority of the corporate assembly, the provisions of § 18-1 first and second paragraph will similarly apply.

§ 18-3. Proceedings of the District Court etc.
(1) When the District Court deals with matters under the present Act, the procedural rules in § 22 through § 25 of the Probate Act apply except as otherwise provided herein.
(2) Decrees and other decisions pronounced by the District Court pursuant to this Act may be appealed. (3) An appeal pursuant to the provisions of second paragraph may not be based on grounds that the decision is inappropriate or unfortunate. This rule does not apply to decrees pursuant to § 5-25 through § 5-28 and § 8-4.

§ 18-4. Calculation of periods
(1) For the purposes of periods that are calculated in days, the day on which the period begins to run is not included. Included on the other hand is the day of the meeting or the day on which the act to which the period applies could at the earliest have been performed or at the latest must have been performed.
(2) Periods that are calculated in weeks, months or years, expire on the day of the last week or the last month which according to its name or figure corresponds to the day on which the period begins to run. If the month does not have this figure, the period ends on the last day of the month.
(3) If a period concerning an act ends on a Saturday, public holiday or a day which by statute is equated with a public holiday, the period is extended to the next following workday.

§ 18-5. Use of electronic communication between the company and the shareholders
(1) Unless otherwise provided for in this Act, the company may use electronic communication to give messages, notices, information, documentation, announcements and similar to its shareholders under this Act, provided the shareholder has expressly given his consent to this end.
(2) When a shareholder shall give notices etc. to the company under the provisions of this Act, he or she may do so by way of electronic communication to the e-mail address or in such other manner as the company has specified for this purpose.

Complicity will be similarly punished.

(2) An infringement of provisions issued in or pursuant to this Act constitutes a misdemeanor. The right to bring criminal proceedings is statute barred after five years.

Chapter 20. Special companies

I. Public limited liability shipping companies

§ 20-1. Special rules for public limited liability shipping companies

If the company is to engage exclusively in shipping or operations with drilling platforms or similar mobile structures, the following special rules apply:

1. An unlimited liability company may be elected member of the board of directors or appointed general manager.

2. The articles of association may provide that an unlimited liability company shall serve as general manager. In such case the general manager may be given notice of termination by the general meeting at not less than two-thirds of the votes cast, unless the right has been reserved to give notice by a smaller number of votes.

§ 20-2. Public limited liability shipping companies with an unlimited liability company as a director or general manager

If an unlimited liability company is a member of the board of directors or a general manager pursuant to § 20-1 first paragraph, the following rules apply:

1. Each participant in the unlimited liability company will be deemed member of the board of directors or general manager, but they conduct their office in the capacity of participants in the unlimited liability company and as an affair of that company.

2. The participants in the unlimited liability company may cast only one vote in board of directors’ meetings.

3. Any resolution to remove or give notice of termination to the unlimited liability company as member of the board of directors or general manager shall be adopted as a single resolution for all members of the unlimited liability company and may be in its name.

4. When a new participant joins the unlimited liability company, the office passes also to the new participant. On withdrawal, the office terminates for the withdrawing participant. On the withdrawal of the last person who was a participant on the election date, the office terminates also for the other participants in the unlimited liability company.

5. If after the election, one of the participants in the unlimited liability company fails to meet the requirement in § 6-11, such failure will be deemed to apply also to the other participants. The foregoing provision notwithstanding, the office does not terminate for the other participants if the participant who fails to meet the requirement withdraws from the unlimited liability company within three months.
§ 20-3. Foreign national as a director
The election of a member of the board of directors of a company which owns a Norwegian ship requires the supporting vote of all the shareholders if the election of the director would cause the ship to no longer be Norwegian.

II. Public limited liability state-owned companies

§ 20-4. Special rules for public limited liability state-owned companies
Companies where the state owns all the shares are subject to the following special rules:
1. The board of directors is elected by the general meeting, whether or not the company has a corporate assembly. § 6-4 above will however not be applicable to the employee right to elect members and observers on the board of directors. The articles of association may provide that all members of the board of directors and observers on the board of directors shall be elected by the corporate assembly.
2. The King may review resolutions of the corporate assembly pursuant to § 6-37 fourth paragraph or resolutions of the board of directors pursuant to § 6-12 fifth paragraph above, cf. § 6-37 fourth paragraph, if major social considerations so indicate.
3. An extraordinary general meeting may be demanded by the Ministry to which the company pertains, by the board of directors or by any two members of the corporate assembly.
4. The general meeting is not bound by any proposal by the board of directors or corporate assembly for the distribution of dividends.

§ 20-5. General meetings in public limited liability state-owned companies
(1) In companies where the state owns all the shares, the Ministry will be responsible for calling both ordinary and extraordinary general meetings and determining the method of calling them. They shall be called at least at such notice as provided in § 5-10 second paragraph, unless shorter notice is quite necessary in special cases. The general manager, members of the board of directors and corporate assembly members, and moreover the elected auditor if the matters to be dealt with are of such kind that his presence is desirable, must be called to the meeting. The auditor shall moreover be called whenever so demanded by the Comptroller General.
(2) Matters that have not been reported to those who are entitled to be called according to the rules applying to the calling of general meetings, may only be decided by the general meeting when the attending member of the board of directors and corporate assembly members unanimously consent thereto. A general manager or member of the board of directors or corporate assembly member who disagrees with the resolution adopted by the representative of the company’s shares may have his dissenting vote entered in the minutes.

§ 20-6. Representation of both sexes on the board of directors of public limited liability state-owned companies

(2) The rules in first paragraph do not apply to directors being elected among the employees according to § 6-4 or § 6-37 first paragraph. When two directors or more are to be elected as mentioned in the first sentence, both sexes shall be represented. The same applies to deputy directors. The second and third sentences do not apply if one of the sexes represent less than 20 percent of the total number of employees in the company at the time of the election.
(3) The rules of first and second paragraph apply similarly for public limited liability companies that are wholly-owned subsidiaries of a private limited state-owned company or a public limited state-owned company, or for state corporations.

21. If a public limited liability company has issued securities which carry other rights to subscribe shares in the event of a capital increase than permissible under chapter 10, the general meeting may at the majority required for amendments in the articles of association resolve to redeem the securities with the pertaining subscription rights.
