Oslo Børs wishes to contribute, through the Oslo Børs Code of Practice for IR (the “Code of Practice for IR”), to maintaining high standards of quality in the information provided by listed companies. Relevant, accessible and up-to-date information generates interest and confidence – and is essential for liquidity.

The Code of Practice for IR has been prepared for companies that have shares listed on Oslo Børs or Oslo Axess. It also applies insofar as it is relevant to companies that have equity certificates listed on Oslo Børs, and may also be an appropriate source of guidance for companies admitted to trading on Merkur Market. The Code of Practice for IR has been prepared by Oslo Børs in collaboration with the Norwegian Investor Relations Association (NIRA), and is based on the NIRA’s and Oslo Børs’ joint views on best practice for reporting financial and other IR information.

Listed companies must comply with a number of laws and regulations, and it is important that IR personnel are aware of the relevant provisions. Several of the themes addressed by this Code of Practice are governed by detailed laws and regulations. We would like to emphasise that the Code of Practice does not replace these. In some areas the Code of Practice is more comprehensive than the regulatory framework in order to achieve the objective of companies providing relevant, accessible and up-to-date information.

Oslo Børs will revise the Code of Practice on a regular basis to ensure that it is in conformity with best practice.

For companies wishing to highlight compliance with the Code of Practice, the following wording is proposed on the company’s website:

“We comply with the Oslo Børs Code of Practice for IR of 1 March 2017”.

Compliance with the Code of Practice shall be based on a “comply or explain” principle. Any deviations from the Code of Practice shall be explained on the company’s website, as further described in section 3.1 below.

Companies should report in accordance with the revised Code of Practice dated 1 March 2017 with effect from the 2017 financial year.

1. Language

For listed companies that disclose information in the Norwegian language pursuant to Section 5-13, first and third paragraphs, of the Securities Trading Act, it is recommended that all financial information and other IR information shall also be disclosed in the English language.

The company should have a clear understanding of the identity of the target groups for its IR information, and should make language choices in accordance with this.

2. Publication of information

2.1 Interim reports

It is recommended that annual reports, half-yearly reports and other interim reports for publication are considered at board meetings that are held after the close of exchange trading hours. Annual reports, half-yearly reports or other interim reports for publication that are approved after the close of exchange trading hours should be published along with any associated announcements and presentations at the latest by 08:00 on the following trading day.

It is recommended that the company publishes interim reports for the first and third quarters in addition to the half-yearly and annual reports that are required by law. It is recommended that half-yearly reports and interim reports for the first and third quarters are published as soon as possible and no later than by the 15th day of the second month after the end of the accounting period in question.

It is recommended that annual reports are published as quickly as possible and no later than three months after the end of the accounting period in question, unless the company has released an interim report for the fourth quarter by this date.

Interim reports for the first and third quarters, as well as where appropriate fourth quarter interim reports, should be prepared in accordance with IAS 34 or with an equivalent accounting standard where the company reports in accordance with another recognised IRFS-equivalent accounting standard.

2.2 Information on future prospects/guiding etc.

Future prospects/guiding normally relates to information about circumstances that have not yet happened or are not yet finalised. For companies that provide information on future prospects/guiding, this information may create expectations in the market. Some listed companies also elect to provide guidance to the market in respect of target figures, indicators etc. within a specified period before the complete information is available, for example during the period after the end of the accounting period, but before the final annual, half-yearly or, where relevant, interim report that is for publication has been finalised and published.

It is important to be aware that differences between the actual financial results and the indications that the company has previously communicated, as well as changes a company makes to future prospects/guiding it has previously published, may be information that is subject to the duty of disclosure. This must be evaluated on a case-by-case basis, and changes in relation to information that has previously been published about future prospects/guiding that are price sensitive must be publicly disclosed without delay.

The company should have a policy that specifies whether, and if so to what extent, it will provide information on future prospects/guiding, and that ensures that it is consistent in the information it releases. The company should publicly communicate any changes to its policy in this respect.

3. Information on the company website

We recommend that information for investors and the market is presented in a single area of the company website that is readily accessible/visible to investors. The area should be labelled with a descriptive name such as "Investor relations", "Investor information" or "Investor". We recommend that the following information is provided in this area:

To the extent that the company chooses to publish investment research and estimates it should be clearly indicated that these are not the company's own estimates, and that the company has not processed the content. The company should explain what methodology it has used to produce the consensus estimates.

The company should also state which broking firms/analysts are included in the computation if the company publishes such estimates.

4. Communications using other channels

4.1 Social media

It is recommended that companies which use social media in their communication with the market should have clear internal guidelines for how this shall take place that include the individuals who are chosen to speak in public on behalf of the company. These guidelines should also focus on the difference between private and company information. The tone and form of communication through social media typically differs from other channels and is less formal. The companies must therefore ensure that the information given is not shared in such a way that it may be misleading. Notifiable information must always be published in accordance with applicable regulations prior to being published in social media or via other channels.
